Rebecca Drolen: Hair Pieces

March 29, 2014 - April 6, 2014

"...we treat it with disgust, yet it has an archival, lasting presence that outlives the body and defies death and decay."

Threesquared is excited to present new works by Rebecca Drolen, photographer and Assistant Professor of Art at the Belmont University.

Hair Pieces investigates the fickle relationship people have with their body hair. From shameful to desirable, our feelings about hair are often surreal. These images critique the ways in which society influences which hair in which places are alluring or grotesque, which has evolved significantly throughout history.

Drolen received her MFA in photography from Indiana University in 2009. Before joining Belmont in 2013, she served as a Faculty Fellow at the University of Georgia and as an assistant professor at Michigan State University.
